Captions. This is the first collection of articles completely and explicitly devoted to the new field of 'comparative developmental evolutionary psychology' - that is, to studies of primate abilities based on frameworks drawn from developmental psychology and evolutionary biology. These frameworks include Piagetian and neo-Piagetian models as well as psycholinguistic ones. The articles in this collection - originating in Japan, Spain, Italy, France, Canada and the United States - represent a variety of backgrounds in human and nonhuman primate research, including psycholinguistics, developmental psychology, cultural and physical anthropology, ethology, and comparative psychology. The book focuses on such areas as the nature of culture, intelligence, language, and imitation; the differences among species in mental abilities and developmental patterns; and the evolution of life histories and of mental abilities and their neurological bases. The species studied include the African grey parrot, cebus and macaque monkeys, gorillas, orangutans, and both common and pygmy chimpanzees. Looking for the perfect Apes coloring book for kids? Parents, Grandparents and Teachers take a little time to go through the educational pages of this book with the preschoolers in your life. The time will be very well spent. As you tell them that "A is for Ape" and "B is for Bear" - the precious young ones will be learning and enjoying your companionship. After spending time with you they can enjoy coloring the pictures of the ape and the cute little bear all the way through the pictures of the animals with names starting with the letters of the alphabet to Z. As a teacher in the elementary grades, I always found that it was easier for my students to learn if there were images or pictures connected to what they were learning. This coloring book is of animals with names that start with the alphabet letters A-Z. It is a fun way to connect the pictures of the animals with the letters too. Your little ones can have fun coloring in the animals while they are learning.
